In English, we have been reading 'The Journey' - a story that follows a refugee family as they travel to find a safe new home. We have written narratives based on the journey that the family took. We have also started having a go at writing diary entries as one of the family members as they travelled using emotive language.

In science, we have been learning all about electricity. We have had a go at sorting various household objects into electric and non-electric. We then had a think about if they are mains powered or battery powered. More recently, we have had a go at building and then drawing our own circuits using scientific symbols.

In history, we have been learning all about the Ancient Sumerians. So far, we have learnt about where the Sumerian civilisation was located, what it was like to live in their cities and the hierarchy of Ancient Sumer. We have also learned about Sargon the Great and his legacy.
